We have been requested several times lately to call attention to the ruthless destruction of the flowers and shrubbery in the cemetery. It hardly seems credible that any one would be so depraved as to destroy and steal the flowers planted by tender hands on the graves of their loved ones but it is a fact and is perpetrated in the Oxford cemetery constantly. It should be stopped by whoever possesses the authority.

Haywood's Celebrities.

The following is from the Huntsville, Ala. Daily Argus, of Jan 9th:

"The elite of the city thronged the Opera House last night to witness a rare musical and operatic treat rendered in classic style by the company known as Haywood's Celebrities. The performance was grand and encores were frequent, to all of which the ladies and gentlemen of the company graciously responded.

"We need not go into detail touching the merits of this matchless combination, suffice it to say their performance was the most recherche affair witnessed here in years, and our citizens are ready to tender a vote of thanks to Manager Kraus in appreciation of his discriminating good taste in bringing Haywood's Celebrities to this city.

Are You Ambitious.

Especially, are you an ambitious woman anxious to make a career for yourself? Then you will be more than interested in "The Road to Fame or Fortune" published in Demorest's Family Magazine for December, which is a faithful chronicle of how ambitious girls desirous of becoming successful business women live and labor in New York, giving suggestions and valuable information that cannot fail to be of incalculable benefit to all talented and ambitious girls. And this is an ideal Christmas number also. The lovely water color "Did Santa Claus Bring you?" will appeal to everyone, young or old. "Christmas Eve at Bethlehem," with its numerous illustrations, takes one back to the first Christmas Eve, and tells how the traditions are preserved and what ceremonies are observed at the present day. There are two splendid Christmas stories splendidly illustrated: "An Excursion to the Land of Dolls," also illustrated, will interest all little maidens who love their dolls; there is a charming Christmas play; "The Prodigal" which will afford most timely entertainment; a beautiful Christmas card with original words and music, arranged so that it is appropriate for church, school or the home circle; there are numberless suggestions for Christmas gifts; the many departments are full to overflowing with good things and every one who loves babies will be charmed with the portraits of nearly a hundred who are competitors for the "Baby Prize" offered by this Magazine. Indeed, the December number is a generous twenty cent worth; but it is only a fair sample of what is furnished twelve times a year for $2.00. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York.

Register right now if you want to vote.
